

LUKE MURRELL'S PROFESSIONAL PUNTING

Luke Murrell from professionalpunting.com.au breaks down Rosehill R4 - Rosehill Bowling Club (bm78).

Well last week we left our money with the bookies after what can only be classified as bizarre-o, the tactics on Nature strip where they tried to take a sit on what is possibly the fastest 1000m horse in the world.

This week I wanted to stay away from the Acadia Queen race given she came up with B1 and is already in the Everest, also Chris Waller never has them ready to rock and roll 1st up.

I thought race 4, the 2400m staying event provided an edge and this is how I see the race.

Weatherzone Reports that there maybe 5-10m of rain coming Monday but that's not going to help us for Saturday racing where I think we will end up with a good 3 or 4 track on a 6m rail and naturally fence in running will be outstanding.

Sayed	This old bloke resumed on a heavy track which is never ideal, then had a trip to Melbourne 2 nd up which is not ideal and now 3 rd up heads back to Sydney. He's like me, not getting any better with age and with 11 goes on good for 2 placings only way back in 2017 you can put a line through him. 7 goes at the distance for a 2 nd also way back in 2400m. I have him $201	$201	$101
Milsean	A tough NZ mare who has improved out of sight since joining the Kris Lees yard which is no surprise. She got a perfect ride from a very much improving Louise Day last start but it was on her very much favoured wet track. 5 th up here is ok fitness wise but up in class into a fast run race is a recipe I dislike and I have to discount her chances unless we get mass scratching's. or Robbie Dolan can bluff the whole field	$33	$21 into giving him an easy lead which I don't think will happen.

Dabiyar	A very nice horse by Redoutes Choice from Ireland. He had very nice form early days over there last year before joining the Waller yard. He resumed 1st up on an unsuitable slow to heavy track but was obviously very forward as he had been gelded and had blinkers which meant they were trying or concerned about how he was going. Possibly the later as 2nd start he was jammed straight to 2100m from the 1500m and he got a birthday this day as they crawled and he had a nice position on speed and he did enough. His next Start he went to Flemington on a heavy track which was never going to suit and he ran well. What really impressed me last run was post Flemington they didn't give him much chance by jamming him to 2500m and he went sensational. It was the second best race of the day and he worked early in the race after the rider went way too fast but then his ability to sustain the run was first class. He now heads to another fast run race and he gets an improved rider engagement in Mcdonald (albeit his down on his usual form) and he gets a perfect spot here behind the speed. He should stalk Gai's horse Castel Sant'angelo and on that last effort he has 2-3 lengths at least on this field. Importantly he ticks the box of having a recent run at 2400m albeit it was interstate. Everything looks set up and perfect for him. It's a low class race and he should win as this is his best set up.	$3.2	$2.2
Our Gravano	Another NZ horse with Kris Lees and as my old mate Les Norton would say "he needs a firm track like Fine Cotton needs a wash". His had 8 starts on the firm for 2 placings and 1 of them was Canterbury so that doesn't count. His ratings 2 and 3 ago though would see him run top 3 and challenge here but his issue is that firm track and the fact he hasn't had a run at 2400m. He will improve for the run and at best he's a	$26	$34 place only. I'm happy to put the pen though him as a winning chance.

Gayatri	This is one horse that interests me at a price. 4 goes on the firm for 2 wins and 2 seconds, 3 goes at the distance 1 win and two 2nds. It's looked very dour at the start of the prep but ran well last start albeit it had all favours when on speed in a race where they walked early. But to be fair it's sprint home was good. With that blow out under her belt and a bang on midfield ride from T Berry this is the big danger to the favourite here and is at a fantastic price now 5 th up.	$6	$8.5
Costello	Gets the Magic Man in Nash Rawiller at present but is very short at $6. For some reason it was dual accepted for a 1800m race on the same card so i'm not sure how screwed down it will be. He tries hard this horse but he hasn't had a run at 2400m this prep (and possible was kept fresh to head to the 1800m) so won't be as fit as some. 10 metro races for 2 wins back to back in Feb this year. David Payne is superb horseman but the placement here concerns me.	$11	$5.5
Desert Path	The jockey booking suits the horse in Collett as he's a hold up man. Interesting this horse has more talent than anything in this race but has been very disappointing since joining Waller from Europe. However this horse has a smell that today is his day. He gets Collett, he gets blinkers and he comes from a 2400m race which is fantastic. Last start was interesting as it was only the 2nd time he has been to his right trip since being in Australia, the first time off a poor set up he ran 4th btn 1.5 in a poor form race with just 0 winners from 43 subsequent runs). Last start he was back in a dawdling 2400m race (Gayatri ran 2nd). He took off early like he had to and he had similar or better sectionals to Gayatri before the run died the last 200m. With a more genuine run race and blinkers I think he is the blowout chance.	$9	$21

Monsieur Sisu	Good tough horse but 0 from 7 on firm. Was unplaced when all favours his only go this trip and he's not off a recent 2400m run. He doesn't have much appeal in any area. Put a line through him.	$18	$34
Nahuel	He's been grossly disappointing this prep but to be fair he was a bizarre purchase from Europe. He came and made an impression in winning his maiden, C1 and C2 but his maiden has produced just 3 wins from 117 subsequent runs and the Class 1 win 8 wins from 62 (4 prov and 4 country). The class 2 win has produced 2 from 31 runs and his Bm 70 just 5 wins from 45 so really im saying this horse has NO FORM at all to recommend. On the plus side he's had 2 wins in Oz on firm and his 3 career runs at 2400m have been a win and a place and high rating close up finish. To be fair most of his recent form has been on wet but I feel he's a level down and just going as good as he can. If you want a big priced one for minor money exotics you could throw him in given his 2400m record.	$21	$19
Castel Sant'angelo	Possibly the best front running rider in Australia in Tim Clark and this leads and tries to control the tempo so always wary. Firm tracks no issue and it comes from a high rating 2400m race last start which is an ideal platform for this. Genuine Chance the only issue has never been to Saturday grade and is on speed and up in class.	$7	$5
Mrs Madrid	Nice staying prospect in a camp going very well at present with 6 from 31 in the last 30 days @ 19% and up from the 14% the stable normally runs at. The issue is no 2400m recent run and only 3 rd up off a heavy track and some of this horses firm track form is not ideal. Another rough place hope	$18	$16
Curata Princess	Fantastic stable but this horse is out-graded.	$101	$26

Summary:

A good race with Dabiyr deserving to be on top but I think he is way too short and will drift. I want to be on Gayatri each way as it gets the kind run back in midfield away from the tempo.

Suggested Bet: 1 units Gayatri win and 2 units place at the $8 and $2.50

Last Week: Nature Strip -3

Running Total: -3
